Contributors and hosts of the creative working groups

This event is dedicated to bringing thinking into artistry. We warmly invite you to work with us on the living thoughts of Anthroposophy through different forms of art.

During these four days, we will dive into “The Philosophy of Freedom”. Rudolf Steiner expressed that this book was written for people over the age of 28. At the founding of the Section for the Spiritual Striving of Youth in 1924, one of the tasks given, was rewriting a number of the fundamental books of Steiner so that they would speak to young people.

We wish to bring this intention from the past into the present, by guiding a process where through different forms of art we can experience thoughts.

As we will be embarking on a quest together, we encourage you to join the full program. If you are unable to attend all days, please reach out to us. This event will be held in English.

Looking forward to artistically exploring Anthroposophy together in February!

Pre-event sessions in preparation of the conference!
Hosted by Ana Dufner

Join us online via Zoom or at the Youth Section House in Dornach for an abstract painting session in preparation for the February Days event! We will dive into the meaning of one paragraph from the ninth chapter of Philosophy of Freedom and explore which colors, images and feelings such phrase evokes. Have your watercolors, colored pencils and pastels ready! Mark your calendars: Thursday, 23rd and 30th of January at 19:30 to 21:00 CET.

You're also very welcome to join the pre-event sessions if you're not able to come to Dornach in February!
