Anthroposophy Studies on Campus 2024-2025

Autumn Term

Anthropology: What does it mean to be human?

7th October - 18th December 2024

On campus / Full time

Dornach, Switzerland

Book Study:

Theosophy, Rudolf Steiner

During the first term, you will engage in an interdisciplinary program that introduces you to the foundations of Rudolf Steiner's work.

Morning lessons focus on the study of Rudolf Steiner's book "Theosophy. An introduction to the spiritual process in the human being and the cosmos". Weekly seminars and artistic classes support you in delving into the essentials of Anthroposophy expressed in the texts. While on campus, you also have the opportunity to connect to the Goetheanum and the School of Spiritual Science, attend conferences and other events. The term ends with a guided class trip to Chartres Cathedral.

Freedom, Knowledge and Responsibility

6th January - 21st March 2025

On campus / Full time

Dornach, Switzerland

Book Study:

The Philosophy of Freedom, Rudolf Steiner

Can the process of knowledge and the concept of human freedom grounded in Anthroposophy help us address contemporary issues?

During this term, by working together with your fellow students and mentors, you will attempt to build an understanding of today's world and current challenges through the study of Rudolf Steiner's book "The Philosophy of Freedom". This dynamic trimester includes artistic classes, complementary activities on-campus, field trips and seminars.
